Following introductions, Ed Sloat reviewed the meeting agenda, goals and suggested task force norms.

Ed led a discussion regarding the essential planning issues including historical trends, projection estimates, growth-trend, facility enrollment, future enrollment, and foreseeable impacts. Ed reviewed the tentative planning task force charter, timeline and deliverables.

Ed Sloat then discussed relevant criteria/policy considerations in establishing guiding principles to aid in the process of developing and evaluating attendance boundary scenarios. He provided several examples of general topic areas as well as other policy considerations.

The task force broke into small groups and engaged in an activity to begin identifying core planning values. The first part of the activity involved focusing on softscape attributes (What does the ideal CGESD campus look/feel like?). The second part of the activity involved focusing on hardscape attributes (What type of geographic, physical, logistical, structural considerations should be considered when making enrollment planning decisions?). The small groups reported out on their softscape and hardscape attributes.

These attributes, in the form of guiding principles, will be reviewed at the next task force meeting.
